

Roberts-Victor Roberts-Victor Mine

Contributed by Administrator
Monday, 29 October 2007

Roberts-Victor. The name of the Roberts-Victor Mine, in the Republic of South Africa, was once applied to a grade of diamond that was even finer in some respects than a /ager. The name still has some application in the trade; it refers to a diamond with a very light-blue body color of medium to low intensity.

Roberts-Victor Mine. A small dia-mond mine in the Orange Free State, Republic of South Africa, now closed, that was noted for its produc-tion of well-formed octahedra with a faint blue body color.